

Dear ,

The post about losing my local farm is very important to me. If you could pass it along (Facebook, Twitter, etc) or comment on it, I would really appreciate it!

Please enjoy this week's newsletter. If you have a friend or two who might like the newsletter, why don't you suggest they sign up by forwarding this email? Or you can click the little envelope at the top right corner to send to a friend, Twitter, Facebook, or LinkedIn.

Thanks,
Anne

If a Small Farm Fails, Does Anyone Notice?

The news was something I'd been hoping--desperately hoping -- not to hear for almost six months now. When I finally got in touch with my farmer about continuing our arrangement for my weekly farm box, he said he wasn't farming anymore. The hurricane and subsequent storms from last August had wiped him out. And a farm that had been feeding people for generations is no more.

The World's Easiest Cauliflower Recipe

The Accidental Locavore's friend Cozy had this as an appetizer in New Orleans and fell in love! You will, too, as it's super-simple to make and roasting brings out the sweetness of the cauliflower (not to mention how cool it looks when you present it). One smallish head of cauliflower feeds 4 and the whole thing takes about an hour, mostly roasting time.

New This Week:

June Desktop Wallpaper Calendar

Since my weekly farmbasket is no more, I've been going to various Farmer's Markets. This beautiful lettuce is spotted romaine from Eckkerton Hill Farm. Click here to download the Accidental Locavore's June Calendar. To install it on Windows: Download and save the image where you can find it. Then: Control Panel/Personalization/Desktop Background and select the image. Or, just right click on the image and "Set as Desktop Background" Enjoy!
