Accidentallocavore®

Dear Friend,

It's (gasp!) almost Labor Day weekend! Where did the summer go? I've been playing with food and this week's recipe is a result of that. A fun storytelling evening in Brooklyn at the home of Farmigo.

Why don't you invite your friends to sign up for the newsletter? My goal is to double the readership, so if everyone reading this can get a friend to sign up...Or you can click the icons above the logo to send to a friend, Twitter, Facebook, or LinkedIn.

Enjoy!

Anne

A Storytelling Evening at Farmigo

If, like the Accidental Locavore, you spent a lot of time in New York City, the Gowanus Canal in Brooklyn was not somewhere you'd go on a whim. However, in the search for hipster space it (like so many other places) has been cleaned up and is now a hot area. The other night I went out there to visit Farmigo's offices and go to their monthly storytelling event.

Playing With Food: Salami and Cheese Crisps

The Accidental Locavore was reading a recipe recently for an extremely big, complicated sandwich, part of which included a "frico" with salami and provolone. Since we had some very attractive salami and some normal-looking provolone, it seemed like a good idea to go play in the kitchen. It's not really much of a recipe (and if you've ever made fricos (Parmesan crisps), you'll know just what to do), but you really need to have a Silpat.
