Dear Friend,

My mother's famous raspberry blueberry pie is the star this week along with a look at the Armsby Abbey in Worcester Mass.

Secret Family Recipes: Raspberry Blueberry Pie

My mother has always made great pies, a trait I'm afraid that has not been inherited by the Accidental Locavore. It's not that I don't make good pies, I just don't make pies, or do much baking for that matter. My mother's stellar pie, is her raspberry-blueberry pie, which she will only make when both raspberries and blueberries are in season. And to my mother, a blueberry only comes from Maine where they are wild and small. None of those big marble sized blueberries for her special pie (trust me, we've tried).

Road Trip: Armsby Abbey

My friend Cozy has been trying for ages to get the Accidental Locavore to stop at the Armsby Abbey in Worcester, Mass. Recently, on our way to Maine (to help lessen the lobster population), we finally made it to this exalted restaurant. We weren't sure it was going to happen, as they only serve brunch until 3:00 and we pulled up at 2:55, dog in tow. They were happy to let us sit outside with the dog and we managed to order just before the kitchen closed.
