Accidental Locavore®

Dear Friend,

Trying out a new look, what do you think?

This week, a great Thai ground pork salad, a beautiful July calendar photo and a report from my CSA.

Thai Ground Pork Salad Recipe

Either the Accidental Locavore or my CSA, seems to be on a Thai/Asian theme lately. Anyway, this was a great use of some of the produce that was recently available. With any Oriental dish, the list of ingredients looks long, and here there's some chopping involved, but once you get everything prepped, it's quick to cook and finish. This is adapted from Tasting Table and while they said it feeds 4, 2 greedy people finished it off pretty easily as a main course. Salad Recipe:

Poughkeepsie Farm Project

One of the cool things about the CSA (Community Sponsored Agriculture) that the Accidental Locavore joined this year is that you can pick out your own stuff. Depending on the size of your share, you can (for the past two weeks, anyway) pick five different items. For me, it becomes a veggie version of Chopped. Poughkeepsie Farm Project:

July Calendar

Doesn't this look delicious? Watermelon and mango at a street vendor's in Mazatlan, Mexico. Click here to download and save it as your desktop calendar.

Shoes and Financials?

What do shoes, financials and bras have in common? If you missed my interview on Wendy Hanson's radio show, you need to check it out. Click here for the link to her site, or check it out on iTunes.
