Thanksgiving Recipes: Two Favorite Side Dish Recipes for Cranberries, and Brussels Sprouts

Thanksgiving has become an interesting holiday. For the past few years, the Accidental Locavore has traded her apron for clown make-up and marches in the Macy's Thanksgiving Parade. When I'm not clowning around, these are a couple of my favorite side dish recipes. The first is a delicious cranberry sauce, the second a great way to combine pearl onions and Brussels sprouts (and you can still find local ones) so everyone will love them.

Clowning Around

Don't forget to set those DVR's and look for me as a fire fighting clown in the Macy's Thanksgiving Parade. I'll be a fire fighting clown in a yellow slicker, black pants, and red turtleneck with matching nose. It's the most fun on Thanksgiving!

Happy Thanksgiving to all!

Please help! I've been working really hard on getting the website ready to launch. Please "Like" the Accidental Locavore on Facebook so we can have our own link.
